QUALIFICATIONS

As not-for-profit financial cooperatives, credit unions are democratically run: each member is an equal owner who helps control the way the credit union is operated by electing a Board of Directors from among themselves. The Board of Directors sets policy, hires a manager, and appoints the Supervisory Committee. The Supervisory Committee manages internal audits to safeguard against fraud.

Qualifications

Directors must be active members of the credit union, of sound mind, bondable and in good standing with no delinquent obligations to the credit union. They must be at least 18 years of age before the election, able to act independently and objectively regardless of external affiliations, and exhibit:

- Personal character and integrity;
- A demonstrated ability to communicate effectively and to think creatively;
- A willingness to serve the members and support the credit union's values and culture;
- The ability to comprehend and learn business concepts and procedures;
- The capacity to provide strategic direction and sound organizational leadership; and
- The desire to be a team player and a have proven record of successful teamwork.

Personal Commitment

In addition, experience has shown that successful Directors share the following traits:

- Active use of credit union products and services and participation in credit union events;
- Caring about the welfare of members and the credit union's role in achieving that goal;
- Knowing the credit union's history and philosophy, and remaining loyal to those beliefs;
- Devoting the time and effort necessary to perform Director duties, including preparation for, attendance at, and participation in all meetings and educational opportunities; and
- Collaborating well with other board members and supporting majority decisions.

Directors must be willing and able to serve three-year terms once elected, and to commit to approximately twenty-four (24) hours per month, including preparation for and active attendance at meetings. In addition, Directors will typically be asked to attend one or more educational/informational conferences annually (paid for by the credit union), and to participate in the credit union's strategic planning retreats each year, which are usually full-day sessions.

Knowledge and Skills

A good Director knows and understands, or is willing to learn:

- Business procedures and practices, including the ability to read and comprehend a financial statement and make strategic financial decisions;
- General management, personnel, planning, technology, marketing, and budgeting skills;
- Local, national, and international socioeconomic and sociopolitical trends, issues and environments, as well as how they may affect the credit union movement; and
- Additional subject areas such as security, legislative advocacy, and regulatory issues.

Compensation

The scope and complexity of the ever-changing financial services market requires Directors to have strong business acumen, diverse skills, and dedication to service in order to meet the demands of a competitive and highly regulated financial services business. The time commitments for the Directors to prepare for and attend meetings, obtain and maintain the requisite regulatory training and continuing education are significant. This warrants fair and reasonable compensation.

On Tap Credit Union has established a compensation policy to provide reasonable compensation for its Board of Directors. This policy recognizes the contributions of the Board of Directors; outlines the performance required for compensation; and provides a framework to ensure compliance with the requirements of On Tap Credit Union's bylaws and Colorado law.

DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Authority

The Board of Directors is the legal authority for the On Tap Credit Union. The Board of Directors governs through exercising both its formal authority (i.e. to select the President / CEO) as well as its informal authority of influence and persuasion (i.e. to help shape the strategic goals of the credit union).

The Board traditionally delegates the authority to carry out the operations and management of the credit union to the President/CEO and actively supports – as well as holds accountable – the President/CEO in carrying out the credit union's collective vision, mission and strategic goals.

Responsibility

Board members must effectively carry out their vital leadership, legal, and stewardship responsibilities and act in the best interest of all the members of the credit union. As such, Board members are responsible for providing effective governance and leadership to the credit union.

Board members play a vital role – in constructive partnership with senior management – in crafting the strategic direction of the credit union. They do so based on their shared understanding of the purpose and goals of the credit union as well as their vision as to how to best serve the evolving needs of the credit union's members.

Collectively, the members of the Board are legally responsible for the credit union and all its activities. Working together with senior management, the Board also has the responsibility for establishing and shaping the vision, mission and goals of the credit union. They also must provide ongoing oversight to ensure the safety and soundness of the credit union. Accordingly, the Board ensures the finances of the credit union are handled properly; approves and monitors the annual budget; ensures compliance with applicable legislation; establishes and monitors policies and practices.

A general understanding of the principles and fundamental governing concepts of the On Tap Credit Union Board are broadly stated below. These governance principles shall not prohibit the Board's detailed review of and understanding of the credit union's operational or other efforts as may be occasionally warranted by special circumstances.
